

Adoptive Home Purpose Statement

We seek, for our horses, adoption to homes where they will be well cared for and loved. Not all who desire horse ownership are ready. Horses are expensive and they often live to be thirty years of age. Also, an adopted horse needs a quality home just as much as an expensive performance horse.

Experience has shown that there are many quality individuals who desire horse ownership but are not yet ready to take on the years of work and financial obligation that is required. Many of the horses at Blue Rose Ranch are not commercially valuable and cannot be sold quickly or at a profit if circumstances suddenly change for an owner.

Decisions on adoptions are made with the interest of our horses in mind. They are not personal. There are people for whom we have great respect that do not have the time, the facilities, the work situation or finances for successful horse ownership.

BLUE ROSE RANCH GOLD STANDARD OF HORSE OWNERSHIP

1. Prospective adopters need to own property suitable for a horse, which includes shelter from inclement weather. It is difficult and often dangerous when a horse does not have constant and immediate supervision from its owner. Experience has shown that borrowed or leased property does not work over time. Jobs and friends unfortunately come and go and we have taken back dozens of horses for this reason.
2. It is OK, however, if an adopter has a longstanding relationship with a boarding facility and they make monthly payments to rent space for their horse(s).
3. Adopted horses need access to other horses for a companionship. Horses are herd animals.
4. Adopters must be able to afford, ongoing, the adoption fee and the excellent care of two or more horses. The least expensive part of horse ownership is the acquisition of the horse.
5. Adopters should have knowledge about all aspects of horse ownership and care.
6. Adopters need to own a high quality, well maintained horse trailer and an appropriate vehicle to pull it.
7. Adopters need to have good, local references within the equine community.
